

ALLORAH'S INSIGHTS

April 26, 2009

My best friend is a master at the laws of attraction. She was born that way and naturally does things so many of us are endeavoring to learn. This inspired me to check around to see if living with the principles is, in actuality, common. I am finding that in many ways, it is. That means, we are ALL masters at the law of attraction; the frustration and confusion is, that many of us have been conditioned to manifest in contrast to what we truly desire in our heart of hearts.

Have you ever been faced with the dilemma of believing that there are people out there who are manifesting like crazy, who are, at the same time, not "good" people? If so, does that blow your mind and leave you feeling discouraged? It is important that you understand...the universe is both supportive and neutral at the same time. As a result, each of us is able to manifest that which we attempt regardless of whether or not our moral compass resonates with the moral compasses of those around us.

Perhaps it is ironic that our internal judgment holds much more sway in our ability to manifest than does the judgment of the cosmos. So, the belief systems we buy into are our greatest obstacle or asset. It is up to each of us to give ourselves permission to allow and to have. We all deserve to have, simply because we exist. It is up to us to insure that our considerations of our "goodness" or lack thereof are not factors in our getting!

Good and bad or right and wrong are ultimately subjective. I would even go so far as to ask that you consider that being truly supported "to have what you desire and require" will actually empower you to become a better person. I would suggest that you separate worthiness from deserving. Growth can be easier if we feel safe and supported. Think of it this way, a child who is raised in an environment with access to healthy supplies of food, drink and shelter is more likely to grow up healthy and strong than is a child raised in environment without these basics. So it is energetically with all of us.

Get over yourself! Choose grace. It is in all our best interest to develop the ability to manifest well. If we are able to live tapped into the loving abundance that is, we are better able to want a win/ win for everyone. That is a beautiful ambition because it allows for more grace and less strife for everyone, everywhere, everyday.

Namaste,
Allorah